Comment:	3.9 pCi/L or less is considered to be an acceptable level of radon. The US EPA has set an action level of 4 pCi/L. At or above this level of radon, the EPA recommends you take corrective measures to reduce your exposure to radon gas.

Radon Health Risk Information

Radon is the #1 leading cause of lung cancer in non-smokers. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Surgeon General strongly recommend that further action be taken when a home's radon test results are 4.0 pCi/L or greater. The national average indoor radon level is about 1.3 pCi/L. The higher the home's radon level, the greater the health risk to you and your family. Reducing your radon levels can be done easily, effectively and fairly inexpensively. Even homes with very high radon levels can be reduced below 4.0 pCi/L. Please refer to the EPA website at www.epa.gov/radon for further information to assist you in evaluating your test results or deciding if further action is needed.

The Radon Certification Act requires that anyone who provides any radon related service or product to the general public must be certified by the Pa. Dept. of Environmental Protection. You are entitled to evidence of certification from any person who provides such service or products. You are also entitled to a price list of services or products offered. All radon measurement data will be sent to the Dept. as required in the act and will be kept confidential. If you have any questions, comments or complaints concerning persons who provide radon related services, please contact the Dept. at the Bureau of Radiation Protection, Dept. of Environmental Protection, P.O. Box 8469, Harrisburg, Pa. 17105-8469, 717-783-3594 or 800-237-2366.

The Federal EPA recommends that you conduct a radon test every two years on all homes. Please review our web site at : www.RadonTS.com
